Salisbury has ever been strictly an agricultural town and many of its citizens have accumulated wealth from the skillful cultivation of the soil. Though the chief markets were distant, much of the farm produce was sold at their doors and few were the farms that did not produce sufficient to clothe and feed the occupants and have a surplus to make improvements in lands and buildings. The farmers have with rare exceptions, been the substantial citizens of the town, holding a full proportion of official positions and contribating liberally to sustain the institutions of education and religion. In 1823 a county agricultural society was instituted. The society held its first fair at Salisbury South Road Oct. 19, 1823. It was at this fair that Ezekiel Webster first introduced what was afterwards familiarly known at the time as "the Webster breed of hogs." There were entered for premiums 11 farms, 50 head of eattle, 11 horses and colts, 52 sheep and 7 swine, two of the latter, bearing the aristocratic names of "Count" and "Countess" Rumford. The record says "A procession was formed and moved to the meeting house, under the direction of the marshall of the day, where the throne of grace was addressed by the Rev. Mr. Cross, and an address delivered by Dr. Ebenezer Lerned president of the seciety." There were awarded in premiums $202, of which sum the "Count and Countess Rumford" each obtained $4.00; for exhibitors of farms $70.00; cattle $47.00, sheep $14.00, horses $6.00, domestic manufactures $57.00 including seven pieces of fulled cloth, five pieces of carpeting, two of flannel, and two of linen cloth. No fruit, or field or garden erops were entered.

In 1822 the children are gingerbread and candy at the fair; in 1922 only 100 years later, what don't they cat?

As early as 1884 or before, the town had two active organizations, Bartlett Grange and Farmers Club. These did good service, in keeping alive a love for the home and the farm of the fathers.

THE ALMS-HOUSE

For half a century after the settlement of some parts of her territory, Salisbury had no panpers. When it became necessary to grant assistance, special provision was made by the selectmen or by vote of the town. The usual course was to board the poor with those reliable eitizens who in addition to the labor which they could perform, would take them for the smallest amount of money. The successful bidder on his part, was to take the paupers from their homes or previous places of residence, "furnish them with the necessary meat and drink, washing and lodging, rum and tobacco" while the town would provide clothing and such other aid as was especially stipulated. It is evident that the old course was pursued with regard to the few paupers in the town until 1831, when a farm, with stock and tools, was purchased where the poor were afterward supported. Under the law of the times, if a man contracted more debts than he could cancel he was committed to jail on complaint of a creditor.

THE TORNADO

Sept. 9, 1821 at 5 P. M. it struck Warner, and Salisbury, New Hampshire, where Deacon Joseph True resided. A child of Mr. True was injured so severely that it died soon after. Mrs. Peter Flanders, a daughter of Jabez and sister of Joseph True, was so badly injured about the head that she never recovered. The greatest sufferers by this formado were the two Savorys in Warner, and the Trues, father and son, in Salisbury, and Joseph True was the greatest individual sufferer. Joseph True's loss was $800,00 and Jubez True's loss $100,00. Jabez True was a grantee in Kingston, Stevenstown township.

THE TRUE FAMILY, IN AMERICA

THE NOOP Sylasurer is derived from the Latin salas, which sign nifies safety or health, and the Anglo-Saxon burg, or burh, a corporate town which is not a city.

It was named directly from Salisbury, Mass, which was so called from Salisbury, England. It is bounded on the north by Andover, on the east by the l'emigewasset and Merrimae rivers, on the south by Boseawen and Watner, on the west by a tract of land once called Kearsurge Gore which was later annexed to Warner. It is four miles from north to south, and nine miles long from east to west and centained 28,600 acres

For more than a decade of years Salisbury's hardy and fearless settlers were the very pioneers of civilization, stood upon its extreme verge, repelled the assaults of savage beasts and more savage men, defended their rude dwellings, "from violence and destruction" and bared their brows to the tomahawk and scalping knife and their breasts to the Indian bullet. "Through the fire and blood of a seven years Revolutionary war" her sons shrunk from "no toil and no danger" that they might establish and save to themselves and their posterity "a name and a country" and that, too, a free country. For several years after its settlement there rose no smoke from the habitation of any white man between Salisbury and the settlements on the rivers of Canada. Her women were slain by the tomahawk and her men and maidens were ambushed, seized, made to run the gauntlet and earried away into captivity; and while the inhabitants of other towns were obliged to abandon their recently made homes and flee for protection to stronger and more populour settlements, the stalwart inhabitants of Salisbury stood firm, built their cabins, and defended them.

When Philip Call, Nathaniel Meloon, Bengamin Pettengill, John and Ebeneser Webster, Andrew Bohonan, and Edward Eastman and their associates built their rude dwellings in Salisbury, then Stevenstown, they formed the exposed picket-line of civilization in New Hampshire, and they maintained it till the peace of 1763, notwithstanding Nathaniel Meloon his wife and three children, were seized by the Indians and carried away to Canada, and sold into captivity and the wife of Philip Call was murdered, and Samuel Scribner and Robert Barbour were also captured and sold into captivity at Chamblee

When the clash of arms with the mother country came, the people of Salisbury were ready at the country's eall, and every one of her voters signed the association Test, except two, these two declined to sign on account of the faucied indignity implied in demanding that two such devoted men should sign their names to recommend their

In the year 1780 the term of service of the three-years continental men expired, and it became necessary to re-enlist some 15 men, to take the places of those who were discharged, in addition to the four men who took the places of those who died at Valley Forge, however none of the Trues were among these. The bounty demanded and paid was chiefly in cows at the rate of four cows at $12.00 each for each year of service or about $50.00 in silver or gold per year. Continental currency was then reduced to a standard of about $15.00 for every

The highway tax was very high in 1780 but it was during the Revolulionary War and the dollars were worth only about one-third of a silver dollar. Jacob True paid $51.00 highway tax.

A HISTORY OF SALISBURY, NEW HAMPSHIRE

Jacob True was Moderator of Salisbury in 1784, and tax-collector in 1790. Renben True was Moderator of Salisbury 1794-6.7-8 and 1801-2-5-6. Jan. 16, 1788 Col. Webster was elected a del egate to the convention at Exeter for the purpose of considering the United States Constitution. A committee was also chosen by the town to examine said Constitution and advise with said delegate,

In the days of small things, in the midst of dangers, hardships and privations, the people remembered the source from whence came all spiritual and temporal blessings, and builded and maintained their temples for the worship of the Most High. "In the church of the wilderness Edwards wrought, shaping his creed at the forge of thought, and with Thor's own hammer wielded and bent the iron links of his argument, which strove to grasp in its mighty span, the purpose of God and the will of man." The first church created in the State was located at Dover Point. This house was built in 1633 or 1634. In the cause of religion Salishury was not a whit behind any other town in the State.

Religious teachers were maintained almost from the first sound of the seltier's axe and in 1733 a "learned minister" Rev. Jonathan Searle, a graduate of Harvard College, settled over the Congregational Church and continued to minister there for eighteen consecutive years. The "Standing order" was the congregational denomination or the "orthodox." To this denomination the appropriations by the town for the support of the gospel were assigned prior to the year 1819, living, this History is most respectfully dedicated.

To know nothing of our ancestors or from whence we came, to have no reverence for the precious memories of the past, is to ignore the elements and influences which have made us what we are, is to repudiate the natural instinct of the human heart, and to suppress the aspirations and hopes of a soul that is to course on through the endless circles of eternity. And what more precious testimonial of your love of kindred and home can you leave than that which provides for the transmission of the history of your ancestors, yourself and your family, to future generations? And how consoling the thought that when you shall have been gathered to your fathers this history shall live through all coming time as a precious inheritance to your descendants. And who so dead to sympathy and affection, to kindred and country, that would not preserve the record of his ancestors, the place of his birth, the home of his childhood, and the sacred spot where repose the loved and lost ones of earth!

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER HOUSE At Haverhill, Massachussetts (See No. 3)

NOTE-Ruth Whittier (3) was the sixter of Joseph Whittier, great-grand father of John Greenleaf Whittier, the poet

H. A. TRUE, M. D.

Above is presented a table of four generations of descendants from Henry True, "of Salem," Mass., the first emigrant, of the name, to this country. It will be observed, from the current number in () that some names are omitted.—These are either females, or children who died young. I have a list of between 7 and 800 names, for the most part derived from the industry of the late Oliver A. True. Esq., of E. Salisbury, Mass., who proposed to prepare a history of the family after the manner of the floyt. Harris and other families. Since his decease. at the early age of 28 yrs., I know of no one ready to pursue the work he had begun.

If there are any of the name of TRUE, into whose hands this sheet may fall, who feel any interest in the subject, they may forward to me such account of their particular family as they may choose. I propose, (D. V.) to arrange the material, thus acquired, in order, as I may find time. Those who choose to address me on this subject will be so good as to do so as soon as possible. In the above list those whose descendants have been furnished in full, are marked,*, those whose descendants have been furnished in part, t, those in which details are for the most part, or entirely wanting, ().
